About the Study

This unique coding program, delivered in partnership with the Australian National University and Brown University, encourages students to explore the exciting world of technology.

About the Role:

As a Coding Instructor Intern, you will work directly with school children (aged 9-15) to introduce basic programming concepts. You'll play a key role in encouraging confidence among students while helping us improve the program through ongoing feedback and support.

Responsibilities:

- Conduct 2-hour teaching sessions each week (3 total sessions per batch on the weekends, over 3 weeks).
- Teach basic programming.
- Help students navigate platform logins and track their activity.
- Report attendance, engagement, and feedback to program coordinators.

Eligibility:

- Currently pursuing or recently completed B.Tech/B.E./B.Sc. in Computer Science, IT, or related field.
- Comfortable visual programming tools (training will be provided).
- Passionate about teaching, innovation, and working with school children.
- Strong communication skills in English and Bengali.
- Commitment to on-site participation in West Bengal schools for 3 weeks.

Benefits:

- Internship certificate from DAI and recommendation letters (based on performance).
- A stipend is provided to cover travel and engagement during the internship.
- Real-world teaching experience in a meaningful educational project.

How to apply?

Interested candidates should send their CVs in PDF format only and a short statement of interest (max 200 words) to jobs@daiadvisory.in.
